LUBBOCK, USA (by Ramkumar Seshadri): India's cotton production is estimated to be 32.9 mn bales (170 kg each) for the 2010-11 season, according to revised estimates released by India's Cotton Advisory Board (CAB) which met in Mumbai. This is 400,000 bales higher than the board's August estimate of 32.5 million bales. All India yield is expected to be averaging about 505.92 kgs/ha.

The Central Zone, which is the largest cotton producing region, comprising of the states of Gujarat, Maharashtra and Madhya Pradesh is expected to produce 21.3 million bales of 170 kg each. The Southern Zone which comprises of the states of Andhra Pradesh, Karnataka and Tamil Nadu is expected to produce 7.2 million bales.

The total acreage in India will be 11.05 million hectares. The central zone is estimated at 7.25 million hectares and the southern zone is estimated at 2.39 million hectares. Gujarat, will have the highest yield per hectare and is estimated to be 665 kgs/ha.

With regard to the supply and demand for the 2010-11 season, only provisional estimates are available. The total supply during the 2010-11 season will be 37.45 million bales. The opening stock for this season will be 4.05 million bales. The total demand during the 2010-11 season will be 33 million bales which leaves a closing surplus stock of 4.45 million bales. Organized textile mill consumption is expected to be 23.05 million bales.

The Cotton Association of India has estimated the production to be 34.75 million according to CAI will be 40.9 million bales and the demand will be 26.6 million bales which will leave a surplus of 14.3 million bales. (Seshadri Ramkumar is
